

THE 77 PERCENT

Inside Kenya's Battle to End Femicide

Every 10 minutes, a woman is killed somewhere in the world. The perpetrator is often an intimate partner, or someone else known to the victim. In Kenya, the frequent reports of femicide have sparked a nationwide outcry. Women, rights groups and families of victims took to the streets to demand that femicide be declared a national crisis. The 77 Percent met some of the families in search of justice and the people on the forefront in the battle against femicide and gender-based violence.

Climate Refugees – A Global Challenge

70,000 people worldwide. Every day. Displaced by climate change over the last ten years. The figures from the UN Refugee Agency are dramatic. Yet so far, there's barely any legal protection for those affected. As the crisis deepens, the first solutions are emerging: In Bangladesh, model villages are offering new prospects to the displaced. In Colombia, a landmark ruling has been handed down that legally recognizes the consequences of climate change. And Pacific island nations are joining forces to combat rising sea levels, which threaten their very existence. The documentary Climate Refugees – A Global Challenge tells the stories of people searching for protection, justice, and a new future.

JD Vance – The Man After Trump

From hillbilly to the White House – the rise of JD Vance to Vice President is polarizing the US. While supporters praise him as a credible voice, opponents see him as a threat to democracy and political balance. Some already view him as the next contender for the presidency. How did a former Trump critic become one of the leading figures of the MAGA movement? The documentary JD Vance – The Man After Trump pens a complex psychogram of the politician.

How Wagner Inspired the Fantasy Genre

Fire-breathing dragons, epic battles, monumental soundscapes: Without Richard Wagner, fantasy would look very different. The composer's operas influenced generations of artists and their works, from Tolkien's Middle Earth to Game of Thrones. To mark the 150th anniversary of the Bayreuth Festival, Arts Unveiled asks: How much Wagner is there in the fantasy worlds of our time?

Is Faith the New Cool?

Just how religious is Generation Z really? In its series “Young and Faithful,” Euromaxx profiles young people from across Europe who speak openly about how religion shapes their everyday lives, from friendships and relationships to major life decisions. Which principles matter to them? Where does their faith give them strength, and where would they like to see change? Among others, we meet a Catholic woman in Spain, a Hindu woman in Germany, and a Protestant woman in the Netherlands. Personal, honest, and surprisingly complex.

The Stolen

What if your entire identity is based on a lie? From 1976 onward, a regime of fear and violence prevailed in Argentina under the military dictatorship of Jorge Videla. Up to 30,000 people were abducted and murdered. Among them, around 500 pregnant women and young mothers, whose children disappeared without a trace. Many of these children were forcibly adopted, their names changed, their true backgrounds concealed. Many even grew up in families linked to the dictatorship, without ever knowing the truth. The documentary The Stolen shines a light on this harrowing chapter and asks: When suddenly your own personal story needs a rewrite, what's the impact on your life?

TRANSFORMING BUSINESS

After oil shale: Are magnets the next big business for Europe?

As oil shale mining fades, Estonia is rebuilding its economy. A new magnet factory ties local job losses to Europe's push for rare earth security and a break from Chinese supply chains. For the 1.3 million Estonians living in this small Northern European country, this transformation is critical. And so it is for Europe, too – as it tries to prove that the green transition can be fair, democratic, and shaped on its own terms.
